What happens on the mission trips?

The L.I.T. preteen mission trip is just that, a preteen mission trip. On the mission trip, preteens from churches from multiple states work together to share the Good News of Christ. Nine weeks prior to the trip, they develop their personal testimony and begin training and preparing for their mission trip. They learn and practice teaching an evangelistic Bible study, they learn how to counsel a lost child, and they learn the mission trip songs. On the mission trip, they do everything—teach the lesson, lead the songs, share their testimony, and counsel lost children. They take on a major role in planning each day while adult leaders support and encourage them along the way.

Why should your church attend an L.I.T. Mission Trip?

If you are like many church leaders, having to plan one more event can be overwhelming. The great part of the mission trip is we provide all the resources you will need to properly train your preteens and leaders for a mission trip. We also do all the footwork to locate partnering churches to house church groups during the trip, and we partner with the church to follow up with children after the conclusion of the trip.

Your mission trip fees cover everything once you arrive at your destination, including housing and 15 meals (breakfast, lunch, and dinner) as well as lunches for children who attend the daily Bible studies your preteens will lead. You will also meet other believers from multiple churches and work together on mission.

What adult leaders are saying about the mission trip and what they personally witnessed...

"The children are capable of preaching the Gospel. We need to stop thinking that we need to keep our kids in a bubble and start letting them go out and teach God's Word to all." —Chelsey Freeman

"I saw fear and walls breaking down among our kids and opening up to allow the Holy Spirit to lead them and work through them. I am deeply thankful for the truths I have learned and witnessed first-hand of the full power of the Holy Spirit at work in the lives of every believer, no matter their age." —Jamie Brown, Macedonia Baptist Church

"One of the biggest lies the enemy has told the church is that children can't be active participants in their faith journey. This has led to spiritually immature adults. Kids that actively engage in spiritual practices become adults that are actively engaged!" —Brandi Melvin, Southgate Church

"They are less inhibited than most adults and willing to share what they have learned with others." —Randy Robinson

"I loved seeing our kids speak God's Word and point others to Him. They were able to keep their attention with worship and crafts and games." —Mike Groeneveld, Spiro FBC

"I saw the students from my church step out in faith in sharing the Gospel and doing things that they would normally not want to do (going door to door)." —Journey of Faith

"The kids on this mission trip have shared the Gospel better than most adults that I have seen." —Landon Harper, Willow Park Church
